Proposal To Legalize Search and Seizure Written In RECESS THREATENED Plan Would Authorize Searching of Autos, Baggage, Etc.

Washington, August 22.—Senators and representatives who voted for the original Volstead act joined today in the rising storm of protest in congress against the Anti-Saloon League proposal to legalize search and seizure of private property outside the home by prohibition agents not armed with search warrants.

The proposal, written into the anti-beer bill by Senator Sterling, Republican, South Dakota, and Rep. Volstead, Republican, Minnesota, "dry" conferees on the bill, threatens to wreck the plan for a congressional recess starting Wednesday and to render further doubt the final enactment of the bill itself.

Opponents of the proposal are ready to wage a long and bitter fight against it. They declare it violates the constitutional rights of the private citizen and would permit indiscriminate search of automobiles, baggage and other private property outside the home on the slightest pretext by the prohibition "police."

Senator Lodge, Massachusetts, Republican leader of the senate, Brandegee of Connecticut, are among those who wield considerable influence on the Republican side who declare they will never consent to the proposal against which a number of leading Democratic senators, including Reed, Missouri, Stanley, Kentucky, Broussard, Louisiana also are lined up.

These senators insist that the provision of the dry proposal which is intended to impose penalties upon prohibition agents unarmed with search warrants who engage in search or seizure of private property outside the home without "reasonable cause" or with malicious intent, is "sheer camouflage," and "means nothing."

Every lawyer knows how exceedingly difficult it is to define or prove either "reasonable cause" or "malicious intent" in a court of law, said Senator Brandegee, himself a lawyer. "If such a proposal were placed on the statute books the private property of a man or woman outside the home would be stripped of every safeguard from search or seizure. A man's pockets could be searched, his wife could be searched, in the most unjustified, humiliating fashion, even though not a drop of liquor might be carried by either of them. A man could be held up on a public highway by the prohibition agents and his auto and his baggage and his pockets turned inside out without his being able to prevent it."

Brandegee and other senators said they would fight to a finish the adoption of the conference report on the anti-beer bill in which the proposal is embodied as an amendment to the measure. The proposal is intended as a substitute for the Stanley amendment, adopted by the senate which was to prevent search and seizure of private property in or outside the home by prohibition agents without search warrants.

Unless the house "drys" accept the Stanley amendment, Brandegee and his colleagues declare they will continue to hold up the anti-beer even if they have to "talk it to death."

ENGLAND ACCEPTS

Washington, August 22.—Great Britain in a note to the United States today expressed its "ready acceptance" of the formal invitation of President Harding to participate in the disarmament conference to be held in Washington on November 11.

Fear of Possible Trouble Between Costa Rica and Panama Over Disputed Boundary Leads to Sending "Soldiers of Sea" to Scene

Philadelphia, Aug. 22.—With fourteen officers and 388 marines aboard, the superdreadnought Pennsylvania sailed for Panama from the Delaware breakwater before dawn today. The contingent of marines was rushed to the Philadelphia navy yard by train from their base at Quantico, Va., and taken down the Delaware to the waiting battleship. Quantities of small arms and ammunition were taken aboard the lighters at Fort Mifflin.

Washington, August 22.—The United States is sitting tight today watching a boiling pot in Latin America.

This government having informed Panama that the United States does not "feel compelled to suggest" that Costa Rica delay longer in taking over the disputed territory on the Panama Costa Rica boundary which was awarded to Costa Rica by the White award and having ordered a battalion of marines to Panama is awaiting further developments.

Officials of the state and navy departments are keeping silent as to the reason for the dispatch of the marines to Panama but it is believed here that the "soldiers of the sea" will receive orders in Panama to supervise the taking over of the disputed territory where trouble threatens.

Narciso Garay, foreign minister of Panama, who has been here as head of a mission seeking to have the United States change its attitude on the boundary dispute, said

Feudists Warned By Troops Against Attempt At Violence.

Mount Vernon, Ky., August 22.—Mount Vernon last night slept on arms. At the Rock Castle hotel members of the White faction are billeted. In two boarding houses in the far eastern part of the town, the Bailey-Lee clansmen surround John Bailey Jr., on the eve of his trial for the killing of Beverly White, and at the courthouse a detachment of the London cavalry force is quartered.

After the arrival of the troops from London, Major Dillon went to the respective headquarters of the factions and personally delivered to the leaders orders against carrying weapons. Any person found armed on the streets will be arrested and taken before the court, the major told them. Both sides expressed willingness to leave weapons behind when they left their rooms and assured the major that they were glad troops had been called.

Among those at the Bailey camp are John Bailey, the alleged murderer who is out under bond; John Bailey Sr., his father; James Bailey and Bev Bailey, brothers all from Knox county. Many other kinsmen, as well as a number of Lees are there.

John G. White, Ashland, a brother of the slain man, and three of his sons, all of Versailles, are at the Rock Castle hotel. With them are many other relatives and sympathizers. Every person entering the courtroom will be searched for weapons. In addition to the detachment of soldiers, twenty special deputy sheriffs will be on duty in and around the court house.

Phoenix, Ariz., Aug. 22.—As a result of downpours Saturday night and Sunday another flood, greater than that of last Friday, swept down Cave Creek, through the Arizona Canal and into the city of Phoenix, threatening extensive property damage and possible loss of life. At 8:15 o'clock last night water entered the state Capitol.

Twenty minutes later the basement of the building was full and the water had entered the first floor. A wall of water eight feet high and several miles wide, according to reports received at irrigation headquarters, washed out a section of the Grand Canal, one of the largest in the district.

Flirey, France, Aug. 22.—Lorraine's monument to the American expeditionary forces, the dedication of which was one of the principal objects of the visit of the American Legion delegation to France, was unveiled here Sunday by the Legion's representatives in the presence of the whole countryside. Marshal Foch, Louis Barthou, minister for the liberated regions, and Ambassador Herrick participated in the ceremonies. The people of Flirey, who all speak more or less English as the result of their long association with the Americans who held the sector were deeply affected by the memories the unveiling brought up, laughing and crying by turns as they exchanged greetings with their American friends and intently following the progress of the exercises.

ONE KNOWN DEAD

Believe Many Guests Were Caught in Blaze Sunday Night

Macon, Ga., August 22.—Three persons are known to be dead and search was being made here today in the ruins of the Brown house for others, following a fire which last night destroyed the ancient frame hotel.

Macon, Ga., Aug. 22.—Fears that more than a score of persons had lost their lives in the burning of the Brown house, an old frame hotel here were expressed early today by firemen and employees of the hotel, although only one man is known to have lost his life. He is J. K. Hayes, a justice of the peace whose home was in Macon.

At 7 o'clock this morning the fire was still burning fiercely, but firemen said the blaze would be confined to the one building. The damage was estimated at $200,000.

More than 150 guests were in the hotel last night when an explosion of chemicals in a drug store, which occupied part of the ground floor, wrecked part of the building and started the blaze. Guests, roused from their beds by the blast, sought to run from the building but found their avenues of escape cut off by the flames which spread rapidly.

More than a score of persons already have been taken to hospitals. Efforts still were being made this morning to check up the list of those identified in the hospitals. The register was burned and the clerk who was on duty when the fire broke out was trying to check from memory.

High Prices Here to Stay Says Leading Economist

Return to Normalcy Means Conditions of 1919-20 Not Those of 1913-14 W. Jett Lauck Declares— Prices Have Reached Lowest Level

Washington, Aug. 22.—High prices here to stay.

W. Jett Lauck, one of the leading economists of the country made this statement today. The good old days when Mr. Common Citizen's income met living costs without a stretch of imagination of strain of pocket book are gone never to return, he declared.

The return to normalcy means return to condition of 1919-1920, not to those of 1913-14, according to the economist.

"To expect a return of the prices and condition of 1919-1920, not to those of 1913-14, according to the economist.

"To expect a return of the prices and conditions of pre-war years is merely the blindness of men in always looking into the past for the golden age," he said.

According to present indications prices have reached their lowest level and now are moving upwards, the economist stated.

"There can be no doubt that prices now are advancing," he said. "Moreover, when fundamental industrial conditions are examined, it is perfectly clear that such advances are inevitable. The price of an article is the combined result of actual production costs—in which labor is the chief item—and the profits of the producer, wholesaler and retailer and others through which it passes before reaching the consumer. During the war these profits were excessive and profiteering ran rampant. Some improvements in this particular have taken place and much greater improvement could take place. But the cold, hard fact is that no important scaling down of profits is to be anticipated in the near future."

According to Lauck, who is consulting economist to the railroad unions and the United Mine Workers of America, neither can any important

ENGLAND STUDIES PROBLEM OF HER
SURPLUS FEMALE POPULATION NOW

New York.—Must two million women remain forever single? In England today there is that number of "superfluous" women, the dearth of men occasioned, of course, by the great war.

What is the best answer to England's woman problem? Lord Northcliffe, famous British publisher, brings up the subject when a girl writer visits him in search of an idea for a syndicate story.

"Tell your chief to find out what's to be done with the two million women we now have in England," he replies without an instant's hesitation.

"We have that many more women than men," he continues. "That should interest everybody. I'd like to have such a story myself."

Far be it for us to insist young English ladies emigrate here and marry our extra male population, although there is a sufficient number of men to provide husbands for all the women in this country and for the "superfluous" British girls, too.

Census statistics for 1920 show there are now 107 men for every 100 women in the United States.

Latest available figures on population announce a surplus of 2,692,288 males over females and a surplus of 2,443,397 the number of females over the same age.

Some of Solutions Offered But there are various solutions offered us for England's problem by representative American women: Emigration to countries where men are still at large.

Women making of themselves such excellent matrimonial material as to lure men from other countries.

Vicariously satisfying the maternal instinct by caring for the youth of the country sons and daughters of women who have found husbands.

And the belief that there is a mate for every one and not finding him woman is better of alone.

Hailing the surplus of femininity in England as a great stronghold for the nation, Mrs. Olive Stoot Gabriel, lawyer, does not think England has a serious problem in this predicament of women.

Big Asset, Says Mrs. Gabriel. "Two million women in any country are an asset, not a liability," asserts Mrs. Gabriel.

"Women are the equals of men in any capacity, politically, economically and constructively. I refer to the reorganization of any country after a war."

"The trouble with the majority of men is that they look upon women not as human beings, but as inferior bits of creation by means of which they may exploit themselves."

"But what of the human side of the problem, the almost absolute certainty that these women can never marry?" Mrs. Gabriel was asked.

"That's what I mean," she replied. "Men think of women only as husband-hunters. Men trouble much more about what women want than women do."

"Under modern conditions I think women marry to have the right sort of children and to bring them up with the best ideals."

"Women don't wed for meal tickets any more. Few women wish to marry unless they meet the right man. Yes, I am a great believer in the theory of getting the 'right one.'"

"I believe there is a true mate for every one of us, and women nowadays want him or don't want to get married at all."

Mrs. Raymond Brown's Opinion Mrs. Raymond Brown, prominent suffragette and managing director of the Woman Citizen, a suffrage organ, does not think the "eternal maternal" should be wasted.

"Two million extra women!" Mrs. Brown exclaimed. "England is rich indeed."

Bulgarian Woman Leader
Here for Lecture Tour

Prof. Irene V. Shishmanoff, one of the most prominent leaders of Bulgaria and editor of a women's newspaper, who has arrived in New York on a lecture tour of the United States. She is the wife of Stephen Stephanoff, the famous composer of the Balkans. Prof. Shishmanoff wears her marriage ring, and is proud of it, but at the same time carries out the emancipated woman's privilege of using her maiden name when she wishes.

"Women, married or not, have the mother instinct."

"If this maternal quality is not expended upon her own children, woman may help her country all the more."

"Economically, woman can earn her own living. She always has, in some way or other."

"I think the two million women could help the children of England."

We can never have too much of the mother instinct, whether it is given to the family or to the country."

Emigration to England's wide dominions might solve the problem, Miss Helen P. McCormick, Ass't District Attorney of Kings County holds this opinion:

Miss McCormick for Emigration. "The first aspect of the question at present is the economic phase of it. After all, if women are provided means of support, the problem is not so dangerous."

"The human side is not pre-eminent at present, it seems to me."

"If women are well provided for economically, men could be easily induced to go to England and take them for wives."

"With all England's dominions, her outlying provinces, she is not devoid of destinations to which she may send, if they wish to go, her single women."

"Let a commission be appointed. Let England aid her superfluous women to go to Canada, Australia and New Zealand."

"Where there are enough men for the women, nature will take care of the human side of the problem."

"In the far-off possessions of Great Britain, surely, there are lonely, helpless men who would welcome wives. It is also cheaper to support a wife than to hire a housekeeper."

"There would be little 'overhead' expense connected with the expedition. The Government should give adequate attention to the problem of its women."

"England must never forget what her woman did in the great war. Sufficient thought should be given to these superfluous women."

"Woman's value is realized now as never before. If a country denies its women today, it runs the risk of being ungrateful."

Styles
BY LENORE

When one makes clothes at home it is possible to select models that have entirely new and individual features and at the same time offer no difficulties of fitting and construction. Such a model is shown in the sketch. It is a dress introduced for midseason wear, and offers an opportunity for originality and style combined with simplicity of design.

The material used is raven's blue crepe meteor—simply another way of saying old friend navy blue! The pleated inset on the bodice is of dull brick red Georgette, which is used also as an underhem for the skirt.

slashed hem. This effect is obtained simply by hemstitching at the desired intervals—about 4 inches in the model I saw. Of course the effect may be carried out entirely in one color with just a bright spot introduced in the knotted ribbon.

PATTERN NO. 236

A pattern for the above model (No. 236) can be obtained in sizes 34, 36, or 38, by sending to Lenore, 8 West 40th St., New York City your name, address and 50 cents in postage stamps. Be sure to keep this newspaper clipping of the sketch and description of the garment to use as a working model when the pattern reaches you—which will be within two weeks' time.—The Editor.

REDUCTION SALADS

There are so many green things to be had now, that any woman who wants to reduce can do so in the pleasantest possible way by eating salads. A couple of times a day—instead of heating, heavier foods.

Salads can be thinning as well as fattening, depends upon the sort of mayonnaise and the amount used. But a "reduction" salad is used with boiled dressing or with mayonnaise made from white mineral oil, which is quite tasteless and not fattening at all, and laxative—if you happen to need a laxative.

Boiled carrots and green peas chopped up together and piled on a large lettuce leaf make a delicious salad—either with boiled dressing, reduction mayonnaise, or with salt, pepper and vinegar as a sauce.

Cherries, fresh or canned, cut up in halves, chopped apple, orange and peaches, make up a fruit salad that is most delicious, and that is delightful to look at (though the woman who is reducing does not need to make foods tempting in appearance).

Lima beans, cut up with apples or with carrots, is a combination that looks and tastes well. Apples can be used with either fruit or vegetables in salads. They combine with almost anything.

A large tomato, skinned, hollowed and stuffed with apple, peas, beans, carrots, or even finely chopped onions, is another idea.

Tomatoes, skinned and sliced and the soft pulp removed, give you scarlet rings. Three on a lettuce leaf, each ring filled with chopped vegetables makes another pretty salad.

Beets soaked in vinegar, cut in dice and mixed with chopped apples, make a pink salad that is also delicious.

Ravine; Cutie; Elizabeth. To reduce the hips, roll back and forth over the floor a dozen times each day and take as many exercises as possible, that require you to bend the body at the waist and hips. The rolling should be done without corsets.

A Reader:—You can lace the fine toothed comb by weaving a strong thread through the teeth, which will make the teeth so much closer, they will do the work more effectively. It is advisable to cut the hair off, as children are very sensitive about such a condition before their playmates. The hair grows quickly with young children.

H. L. G.:—As you have not given me your height, I cannot give you the information. Varying your weight, according to season, is all right as you likely perspire a great deal in summer which accounts for the loss, but you gain it again in the colder season.

Iona:—If you send a stamped addressed envelope, I shall be pleased to mail you a formula for an excellent eyelash tonic.

Kewpie:—With all your opportunities for outdoor exercise and your acknowledged good health, I do not see that you have any cause to be worried because you are not very large. You have four or five more years in which to grow and the riding will help also in your development. Learn to breathe deeply during this exercise.

TWIN BABIES AND DADDY'S DILEMMA

Boston, August 20.—City Housing Commissioner Herbert E. Ellis is confronted with a new problem.

A little over a year ago a young married couple occupying one of a two-family dwelling in Roxbury were blessed with a baby boy. Their landlady then notified them that if another addition to the family came they would have to move. Ellis was called to the telephone by the young husband.

"What'll I say to the landlady now?" came over the wire from the young husband. "We've just had twins!"

"The landlady is probably so over come with the shock she won't do anything," replied Ellis.

GIRL EDITOR OF TELEPHONE MAGAZINE
SECURES LOCAL COLOR BY UNDERGOING
ONE YEAR OPERATING A SWITCHBOARD

St. Louis, Mo.—Three months actual experience as a telephone operator following her graduation from the journalistic department of the Missouri State University, in order to obtain needed information for her new job as associate editor of the South western Telephone News, is the unique record made by Miss Mary Sue Patton of St. Louis. She has held her present position for more than a year and attributes her success in it to the knowledge she gained as a "hello girl" at the switchboard of the Olive Street Exchange, St. Louis. In short, she knows just what sort of material the girls want to see in the monthly magazine and just how to obtain from them what they do know.

The position Miss Patton holds was made for her in the nature of an experiment by the company officials following their attempt to get one of their girls who could write. They were afraid the average college girl would not get the right slant on the position hence the giving of such an experience to Miss Patton.

Miss Patton was graduated from college with a bachelor of arts degree in 1920, and went to Canada to do newspaper work. Later she returned and took the journalistic degree. She was then told of the need in St. Louis for such a position if she would work as an operator for several months. Pending the placing of her there she worked on an Oklahoma paper for several weeks.

Operating Improves When She Quits. Then, as she tells the story "I was sent for to work on the switchboard in St. Louis. I went with fear and trembling and reported to the schools only to be turned down. However, that matter was fixed up and I started in on the most strenuous work I have ever attempted. Covering the wildest story in the world could not have compared with it, and I generally ended the day in a state of tears. Only my determination kept me there. Finally I arrived at the place where I was a real operator and I certainly had more respect by that time for the girls who had answered my 'hello' over the telephone. The girls came to know me just as one of themselves and I liked them. It all stands me in good stead now. In return I have written for their magazine fairy stories of a sort that puts into factual shape some of the things they do each day. I have endeavored to give them imagination in their daily tasks and ambition."

"There is no way that helps to hold a position higher as much as by working with those of the ranks first. It gives you understanding that is valuable. My friends tell me the system is better since I quit operating and became an editor—maybe so."

WOMEN PLAYERS

From my observation and from discussions I have had on the subject with prominent women golfers I believe that many ladies make a mistake in starting the game with the idea that their play must be different from that of men. Even the clubs which a woman uses need differ little from those of a man. Weight, length, etc., naturally should vary somewhat with the physical endowments of a particular player, but the main principles of golf are the same for women as for men. The stance, and grip should be a duplicate of that prescribed for men players but with perhaps a difference in the amount of swing which a man takes on most clubs.

Many professional instructors advise the half swing with both wooden and iron clubs but it is my conviction from seeing expert men play that they will do better to train themselves for at least a three-quarter swing. By developing the three-quarter swing the arms are trained to do most of the work and that is their purpose in Golf.

It is obvious that a woman cannot develop a slashing, smashing game, such as many men are skillful at, but a woman's limitations are not as marked in this style of play as many of them unfortunately believe. If a woman player gets the idea that she cannot hope to do much in free, open swinging, she never attempts to develop it and her game suffers accordingly, particularly in driving.

It is perhaps natural for a woman to feel that she should use lighter clubs than a man does and her reasoning would be true if the men used the heaviest clubs it was possible for them to swing. But they do not. They use a weight of club which in their experience they have found effective for the purpose for which it is designed and a woman should be governed by this same principle. In other words, the weight of the club and its length should be adjusted to the woman's physique. For a woman of good size and average strength to pick out little light clubs is obviously wrong procedure and she handicaps her playing and incidentally increases the exertion and effort necessary to get good results. If the club is too light she cannot maintain the control over it that is easily possible when she can feel the weight of the head in swinging. A somewhat shorter shaft is necessary for most women.

I have been privileged to play mixed foursomes with a number of the best women golfers in the country. I have observed some really remarkable play by them and I should like to pass along here the foregoing ideas and suggestions which I have gathered for women players. Any girl or woman who has ever played tennis or basketball must have the athletic instinct in her and should become an excellent golfer with practice. So far as I have observed the only limitation to a woman's game as compared to a man's is in the distance which they can get in driving. Aside from this handicap a practiced woman golfer can offer interesting competition to most men.

No Domestic Discord in Life of Most Beautiful
Matron at Deauville.

Mrs. Peter Cooper Hewitt, of New York, the most beautiful American matron, at fashionable Deauville, France, is now in Paris with her husband the eminent American scientist. They will soon depart for Deauville. Some time ago it was reported that Mrs. Hewitt went abroad planning a permanent residence there. It is said that the recent rumors of a rift in their domestic affairs have never had any foundation, being merely based on gossip.

ARREST OF MRS. BURKETT ON FORGERY
CHARGE RECALLS FAMOUS SWINDLERS

New York.—Following in the furtive footsteps of one whom she called "Goddess" and whom she served as personal maid, Mrs. Emma Richardson Burkett, of Indiana, is in the Tombs awaiting trial on the charge of forgery.

Forging the name of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt on a note for $69,900 is the charge against this woman who once waited upon that great priestess and adventuress whom it is alleged she has since emulated, Ann Odella Diss De Barr.

Her former mistress's startling career is recalled to mind by the arrest of Mrs. Burkett, who has been positively identified as her maid. But the prisoner, although charged once before with a similar offense does not handle her alleged crimes with the same broad sweep of imagination that characterized Diss De Barr.

Divorced wife of General Diss De Barr, the notorious woman swindler married Theodore Jackson in Chicago, and with him perpetrated many and various types of crime including a religious cult.

Diss De Barr's Biggest Dupe Diss De Barr's most notorious venture was the deluding of an old man of wealth and artistic taste, Luther Marsh, of New York, whom she defrauded by means of "spook pictures." The canvases, which were found to have been painted by her husband, an artist of no small ability, were smeared over with chalk, which she rubbed off at seances, thus fooling the victim, who believed by the spirits of dead artists.

For this hoax the "Goddess of the Swoon" got a sentence of twelve years. But later she and Jackson appeared in London with their notorious cult, "theocratic unity," the machinations of which brought them to the attention of Scotland Yard.

The practices of their domestic cult were bared to a shocked public. A London court sentenced Jackson to fifteen years in jail and Diss De Barr to seven. But the "Queen" of her followers survived and finally came back to the United States to appear in vaudeville.

Not the least of her remarkable claims was Diss De Barr's constant assertion that she was the daughter of the likewise notorious Lola Montez, one-time favorite of the poet-king Ludwig I. of Bavaria and long since resting in Greenwood Cemetery, Brooklyn, under a slab, which says simply, "Mrs. Eliza Gilbert."

Career of Lola Montez Lola Montez's career was distinguished if not for financial swindling at least for the vicissitudes of her love affairs. An eloper—at seventeen—with a young English officer, so as to avoid an unwelcome match, she was soon deserted by her husband, who found another lady more to his liking. Little did the young bridegroom realize that the young damsel he neglected would yet be the prize for whom kings and princes would compete.

Irish and Spanish blood combined in the make up of the daring Lola who captivated Paris in 1829, when she visited the city billed as "Dolores Montez," a dancer. She could not dance any too well, but it is said her beauty made other qualifications unnecessary for success. Her eccentricities became famous and often led to her banishment from various towns she visited, whose staid inhabitants would have none of the caprices of the dancer. At the age of twenty-seven she met Ludwig, King of Bavaria. He was sixty and it is said she represented to him the beauty and poetry of life that the exigencies of his stern career had kept repressed in his nature. She became his favorite and was given the title of Countess Lantfeld and a villa in the Barerstrasse.

Died Unmourned in Astoria Lola ruled over Ludwig's affections until 1848 when European ferment turned his subjects against the fair young charmer, whose views were opposed to all conservatism. She was banished and Ludwig gave up his crown nine days later.

America became Lola's Mecca after this period and here she came to seek fortune on the stage. But her lack of serious accomplishment was not balanced here by her beauty and notoriety so failure was inevitable. She married later in the West, but returned in her old age to the East. In Astoria, L. I., she died, unknown and unmourned.

In this lack of comeliness, coupled with success in deluding men, Diss De Barr resembled the late Cassie Chadwick whose audacious exploits in fleeing financial kings are prominent in our annals of crime.

How Cassie Chadwick Worked Her psychology of approaching a victim has been highly praised. The cash-loving Cassie always had a roll of hundred dollar bills with her, which she displayed carelessly when discussing a possible loan. To insure promptness in negotiating her wishes, she always offered a little "bonus" to her victim. This was usually hailed by men supposedly experienced as vindication of her honesty and financial integrity.

Mrs. Chadwick was eccentric even as a young girl in Ontario where she had calling cards which bore the name of "Miss Cassie Chadwick" and "Miss Cassie Chadwick" after her name. On one occasion in her native land, when she collided with the law she was declared to be insane.

Found Big Business Men Easy She paid one loan with another and started an endless chain of indebtedness. She needed securities, and being of a resourceful nature, proceeded to manufacture them. The late Andrew Carnegie's name was used on promissory notes and deeds of trust. In fact she pretended to be related to the famous man.

On these forged signatures she borrowed about a million and a half from banks. In Cleveland she got $250,000 from a bank which had to close its doors on account of its dealings with her.

Letters of introduction from pastors helped along greatly. It was on one of these that she met and dealt with Herbert Newton, of Boston, who finally sued her and brought her affairs to light. She was at last indicted in Ohio, arrested here and put into the Tombs. In the second year of her ten-year sentence Mrs. Chadwick died in jail. Much of her life and affairs are still a mystery.

BIG SCORE PILED UP BY BREWS IN ONE SIDED GAME

The Home Brews, brewed trouble for Bowersville Sunday by belting the old ball to all corners of the landscape, and winning 11-2 in the game which was staged at Bowersville.

The Brews permitted the Bowersville tossers to hop into the lead in the second inning, just as a matter of strengthening their spirits for the grubbing they were going to get. The locals cut this lead down to one-half by adding a run in the fourth, and having found their old batting eyes, they hopped on Galimore with all fours in the fifth frame, and swatted out six runs.

The score was nil in the sixth and seventh stanzas, but in the eighth inning the Brews added another and then contributed three more by way of a farewell in the final frame. Al. Hook, whose sprinting ability permits him to stretch a single into a home-run, and who does not have to move to catch the fly-balls knocked over his head in the center garden, contributed three of the local counters.

RAPIDLY IMPROVES

Galloway street seven weeks ago, is showing marvelous improvement at the Epworth Hospital. A week ago her condition became so serious that her death was expected, but a sudden change for the better took place, and within the last four or five days she has improved rapidly.

METEORS FAIL TO KEEP UP PAGE

In spite of the fact that they maintained the lead during the early innings, the St. Brigids Meteors were unable to stand the pace set by the fast American Legion line at Reserve Park Sunday afternoon, and they dropped their second game in the city championship series to the soldiers 10-3. Inability to connect consistently with the offerings of Walsh spelled the downfall of the Meteor clan. The scoring began in the first inning when, each of the contending teams hung up a run on the scoreboard. The second inning was an idle one for both clubs, but in the third and fourth, the Meteors counted a run each. The Legionnaires scored again in the fourth, added two in the fifth and in the seventh tied the contest with six runs.

A safety on a fielders' choice two bases on balls, Milburn's three base hit, two errors and a wild throw, contributed to the general down fall of the Meteors in this stanza, and unable to increase their own score, the game was won.

DEPUTY SHERIFF SHOT TO DEATH BY UNKNOWN ASSAILANTS IN KENTUCKY

Hindman, Ky., Aug. 22.—Deputy Sheriff Lawrence Conley, 35, was shot five times from ambush and instantly killed at Yellow Mountain, north of here, according to reports reaching here. Moonshiners are blamed. The deputy sheriff, who is a teacher, had dismissed school for lunch and was walking home on a mountain path. Five bullets from a high powered rifle struck him.

Conley's father and brothers with officers and a posse of citizens scored the hills for the assassin. They trailed a man from the bushes from which the shots were fired, to a high knob where footprints showed he was joined by a confederate. From there the trail became vague.

War has been ranging between Knott county officers and moonshiners for more than a year. Officers have been ambushed three times in the last three weeks but Conley's death was the first fatality. Conley was a married man with several children.

HAGLER'S STABLE HAS TWO WINNERS IN WEEK'S RACING

The racing stable of Joe Hagler, of this city, had two winners during last week's racing at Springfield and at Washington C. H., and was also within the money with another starter. Joe also took the 2:15 trot at the Clark county meeting, with Amerilla McKinney, the trotter owned by Frank McCloud, of Dayton, whose stable the local trainer took after Walter Taylor, was injured during the spring race meeting here.

Hagler lost the first heat to Golden Spier in 2:13 1-4 but came back and took the next two heats, handily. The local driver was also in the money with Al Forbes, another McCloud entry in the 2:18 trotting stake. Joe will race this week at the Madison County fair, at London, with Hallie Cochato, Al Forbes and Amerilla McKinney and at the Blanchester fair, also this week, with Woodcliff King Jr., and Bula.

MARCHING MINERS PLAN INVASION

Charleston, W. Va., Aug. 22. — Men from the Cabin Creek and Paint Creek coal fields who gathered at Marmet, near here Sunday, with the intention of marching to Mingo County as a demonstration against martial law in force there, were still in camp last night, according to Sheriff Walker of Kanawha County. He said that about 300 men had arrived at the camp bringing the total to approximately 900, most of whom are armed.

The plans of the miners who were scheduled to start for Mingo could not be learned definitely.

Sheriff Don Chaffin of Logan County, through whose territory the 80 mile march to Mingo lies, said last night that "no armed mob" will cross the Logan County line. He added that he was "little interested in the gathering of the miners, but that he was prepared to meet any emergency."

State authorities continued to keep in touch with the situation but reiterated they would not interfere until the sheriff asked for aid. Sheriff Walker said he had no reason yet to interfere.

WHISKEYTES STILL KICKING AGAINST LAW ENFORCEMENT.

After a hundred years of experience with the unrestricted use of liquor, and finding what a mighty help it was in the perpetration of crime, and the bringing of heavy taxes upon the people, the nation adopted the eighteenth amendment to the constitution of the United States prohibiting the manufacture and sale of liquor, thirty-six states (the number necessary) endorsing the same by ratification.

One would think that this settled the matter, and it does. But the always unlawful liquor crowd is constantly working away to defeat this amendment. From time to time bills are proposed in Congress to "whip the devil around the stump" in the way of evasion of the provisions of this great and important law of the land. Long winded tirades are made against men who dare to stand for law enforcement, thus fibbing away the time of the men who are supposed to be sent to Congress to make laws instead of defeat them.

Mr. Wayne B. Wheeler, attorney of the great Anti-Saloon League, and Hon. Andrew J. Volstead of the House of Representatives, because of their activity for Temperance, have brought upon themselves the bitterest invective of the saloon crowd, and so they get it right and left.

On Thursday Mr. Wheeler and Representative Volstead, who, as Chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, introduces all prohibition legislation, were excoriated by Senator Reed, Missouri Democrat, so harshly, that Senator Thomas Sterling of South Dakota, Republican, arose to defend the Congressman.

The climax of the day was reached when Senator Reed launched into what he considered to be a description of Mr. Volstead.

"I never had the pleasure of seeing, until the other day, the distinguished author of the Volstead act," asserted Senator Reed. "I do not know whether or not he was born in the United States, but I am informed that he speaks broken English. I do not know what his ancestry may be, but I know I have seen the picture of a few of the conspirators of the past—the countenances of those who led in fanatical revolt, the burners of witches, the executioners who applied the torch—and I saw them all again when I looked at the author of this amendment."

What do you think of that as a sample of courtesy of one member of Congress towards a fellow member—known to be an honored and distinguished member, and an able attorney?

HOME CROWDS LESS ORDERLY THAN THOSE OF PARIS.

Crowds in Paris are more orderly and better behaved than in Philadelphia, according to Samuel M. Clement, Jr., of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission, who passed Monday mingling with the great Assumption holiday crowds on street cars, motorbuses and subways, but most of all he was struck by Parisian sobriety. Despite prohibition at home, he saw less evidence of results of drink even on this gala occasion than on any ordinary day in Philadelphia. In fact, he saw hardly any drunkenness.

Mr. Clement will study Paris transportation conditions while there, as he did in London, where he was particularly struck by the taxicab and bus service and the orderliness of people using the latter. He said:

"London's taxicabs are one-half as expensive as Philadelphia's, figuring at the normal rate of exchange. The vehicles are much better and also the service. The cabs are clean and comfortable, the drivers polite and satisfied with a far more modest tip than at home."

Mr. Clement and John Eagleson flew from London to Paris sitting beside the pilot of a big airplane. They were delighted with their experience and think American railways will before long find the airplane a serious competitor.

BRITONS START NEW QUEST OF HOLY GRAIL.

A new search for "The Holy Grail" has been undertaken. The new quest, however, is very unlike that depicted in the frieze by Abbey in the Boston Public Library or described by Sir Thomas Mallory. Instead of armored Galahads and Lancelots cruising about an caparisoned charger, the work is being conducted by civil engineers and laborers with spade and pick-ax.

It is at Glastonbury Abbey that the work of excavation is being conducted. It was there that Joseph of Arimathea who, legend says, brought the Holy Grail—the cup or chalice of the Last Supper, in which blood that flowed from the wounds of the crucified Saviour had been miraculously preserved—to England, founded a church. The excavation is being made north of the existing lady chapel and at the base of a pillar on which marks of Joseph's church have been discovered.

Many British historians and antiquaries seriously believe the legend of Joseph may be founded on fact, and that the Grail, after nineteen centuries, will be uncovered by the present excavations.

Today's Talk

by George Matthew Adams

Nothing Can Ever Be Destroyed. Every minute change is on. We never face the same day. Every time we look into the face of our friend, time has touched and tinged it, be this change ever so slight.

And yet with all elements of thought and nature constantly moving into different conditions, nothing is ever permanently lost or destroyed during the process.

The great God is a father of compensations. Nature and life were meant to endure. No man could live long in a state of monotony. The seasons must be in order, that all the forces of Nature may unite to beautify and feed the things of the earth.

As I looked out of my car window the other day, I noticed workmen building a great embankment by filling in the low places. I noticed tons and tons of old cans and rubbish of every description—once serving purposes—now finding themselves a part of a new construction, soon to serve its useful purpose.

Nothing can be destroyed. The books on my table once agents of shelter, fertilization and purification as they stood in the shape of trees. Should a fire consume these books tonight, their ashes would again mingle with the forces of Nature, ready to serve again.

Every created thing was meant to last forever. And it will! Just the minute that you think, your thought has some bearing on a definite action. It may be either good or bad—but once started, it forms a permanent part of your life, or an other's.

NO WAY AT ALL TO SMOKE A PEACE PIPE

1901--Twenty Years Ago--1921

Mr. L. M. Garfield of the Little Miami Powder Company, is a business visitor in St. Louis this week.

The Misses Rose Terry, Mary Golden, Margaret Graham and Rose Farrell are anticipating a pleasant outing next week and will go to Mackinac, and other interesting points on the lakes.

Arthur Garfield and Charles Adair who started from Dayton by boat Monday intending to make the trip to Cincinnati, didn't prove good navigators, for they did not reach their destination only going as far as Middle-

Mr. Ed. S. Davidson, the druggist, arrived home yesterday after a ten day's fishing trip along the Miami river near Tadmore.

Miss Carrie Hynes, the efficient bookkeeper at the Xenia Shoe factory, left last night for Chicago, where she will visit her brother.

Mr. Os. Spahr, and son, Leon, leave this week for Buffalo, and other Eastern cities.

extension of loans on the new crop. As the new crop is sold, bankers will persuade the farmers to liquidate their obligations so far as possible, thus releasing much "frozen" credit.

The instability and risk attending livestock production on the farm are the subject of piercing and illuminating discussion in an address delivered by Secretary Wallace not long ago before the Institute of Meat Packers. Periods of over-production have usually followed periods of under-production. Individual growers have guessed at future prices, with some degree of success, but no conscious well-directed effort has been made to put this great industry on a sound business basis and live stock raising remains a gamble.

The Secretary concludes that while much progress can be made, the farmer can never adjust the production of livestock to the needs of the consumer with any degree of exactness. Weather, for example, has a pronounced influence on production, while business conditions affect consumption at home and abroad. The profit in livestock raising must therefore fluctuate to some extent from year to year.

The prices paid agricultural producers may not reflect the full extent of the crop damage suffered during July and the farmers may lose a part of their anticipated buying power. Nevertheless the markets, especially the cotton market, have shown a disposition to advance under bullish crop news. Prices on farm products will almost certainly go higher. When they will reach the point beyond which the consumer will refuse to go depends on the industrial trend this fall and the consistency of export demand.

SCOLDED.

I'm tired of being scolded by highly moral folk, whose thin lips ne'er unfolded to laugh at any joke. So earnestly crusading to have all evils banned, for years they've been parading across the weary land; so stern is their demeanor they leave me stricken dumb, as they denounce the wiener, and curse the stick of gum. Their banners fiercely holding, they push themselves along, and scolding, always scolding, they bore the human throng. If they would spring some laughter, hand out a timely jest, they'd see me follow after with far more pep and zest; but they all balk at humor as up the heights they climb; they think a joke's a bloomer, and happiness a crime. Crusaders might be swarming and not stir up my bile; if they would try reforming with something like a smile; but they are always bitter while handing out their jolts; they never chirp or twitter or kick around like colts. They never try to josh us or jolly us along, but, grim, severe and cautious, they tell us where we're wrong. They never try to fold us to bosoms warm and true, but stand around and scold us and swip our home made brew. They never try to lead us, with love light in their lamps, but bludgeon us and bleed us and call us sinfu scamps. Oh, I might well be molded to suit the moral law, but that I have been scolded until my nerves are raw.

MRS. CHICAO UPG IN ARMS OVER BILL AIMING TO PUNISH WOMEN SMOKERS

Chicago.—Chicago women would like to see any old man take their smokes away from them!

They are up in arms over the proposed national legislation prohibiting smoking "by female persons." Not that they care so much about their violet-scented cigarrotts not at all. It's the principle of the thing.

"Men make laws that infringe upon our liberty as a sex? Indeed not! It is ridiculous for them to think of it!" Thus protests Mrs. Chicago.

One woman says: "It is absurd for men to try to regulate habits of women. They ought to be ashamed of themselves for not being hard at work on something more serious and more important. Smoking is a matter of personal taste and it is not important enough to make legislation about."

"It would be a shameful thing for men to make a law of that kind," says another Chicago woman. "I am glad Miss Alice Robertson, the woman member of Congress indicated she was not friendly to the measure. Women will not stand for that sort of high-handed legislation in a matter that concerns them."

The bill to prohibit smoking on the part of women was submitted by Rep. Johnson, of Mississippi. It would provide a fine for women who smoke and for proprietors who failed to enforce the ban.

Ferry Boat, Lasso and Several Men Needed To Capture Deer

Seattle, August 13.—Woodland Park Zoo has another distinguished method by which it was captured. It took a ferryboat, a lasso and several husky men to get the best of this new member of the zoo.

A year-old buck deer had been chased off Mercer Island by dog and, in a last desperate effort to escape, endeavored to swim Lake Washington. Captain Charles Herzig, commander of the ferry plying on the lake, sighted the animal when it was about midway between the island and the mainland.

Unloading the few phlegmatic passengers who did not wish to participate in the chase, captain pointed his craft lakeward, and the marine round-up commenced. Skillfully he maneuvered his boat close beside the badly frightened deer.

Purser Younger was assigned the first throw of the rope. He missed and the deer swung off to port. Once more the skipper brought his craft alongside, and J. F. Thompson, a former Montana cowboy, made a cast. True as an arrow the loop fell over the head and horns of the animal, and he was hauled alongside. Although badly exhausted the deer put up a stiff fight before he was pulled on board. F took all the men aboard the boat a full ten minutes before the task was accomplished.

Arriving at the dock with the prize, the skipper and his "outfit" were met by game wardens, who took charge of the prisoner. Another fight took place when Ward on Beach tried to induce the deer to take a seat in the tonneau of his automobile. He was finally subdued, after his feet had been securely tied. At the zoo he was pronounced one of the finest specimens ever seen there.

The new member of the Woodland Park family hasn't been christened yet, but the name "Moses" is receiving consideration.

FARMERS SHOULD DEMAND REASONABLE FREIGHT RATE SAYS BRADFUTE DURING ADDRESS AT AGRICULTURAL PICNIC

"We should go in one solid phalanx before Congress and Interstate Commerce Commission and demand that the farmer get a reasonable rate," said O. E. Bradfute, of this city, president of the Ohio State Farm Bureau and vice-president of the American Farm Bureau, in a speech in which he dwelt particularly on the present high freight rates. Before 1,500 people who attended the first picnic of the Greene County Farm Bureau at the Fairgrounds Saturday.

Mr. Bradfute and the other speakers on the program, M. D. Lincoln, Columbus, executive secretary of the Ohio State Farm Bureau and J. Mason Prugh, president of the Montgomery County Farm Bureau and a director of the state organization, emphasized the urgency of a reduction of the freight rates, the necessity of farmers, taking a hand in the making of the new tariff law, and the advantages of co-operation in fighting the farmers' battles.

James R. Howard, president of the American Farm Bureau, who was scheduled to address the gathering in New York City, in the interest of a readjustment of freight rates now, and was unable to be present at the picnic. J. H. Brown, president of the Indiana Farm Bureau, was also unable to be present.

Mr. Bradfute spoke briefly, beginning with an outline of the work of the national organization at present, and in the course of his remarks bringing out some of the problems yet to be faced by the farmers of the nation. The speaker brought out the fact that it costs three times as much for a farmer in Mississippi to ship produce to New York City as it does to ship from Argentina to New York City. "It is mighty necessary that the farmer take a deep interest in freight rates," he said, "the railroads do not seem to realize that if the rates are reduced they will get more freight to haul. They know only that the government insures them a six per cent profit on their investment, in which they have included all the land used for their right-of-ways, which in most cases was given them originally. Where is the farmer who has a guaranteed profit of any per cent. let alone six? Sometimes we have to be satisfied with a 40 or 50 per cent loss."

"If we are to gain anything," said Mr. Bradfute, "it is by bringing tremendous pressure to bear. No other class of business pays the amount of freight the farmers do. The farmer pays the freight both ways. When he sells anything, the buyer deducts the freight from the amount he pays the farmer for it. When the farmer buys anything he has to pay the freight which is added on by the merchant. Urging action of the farmers of the nation in appealing to Congress, the speaker said: "I think we are going to get as square a deal as we have had in many years from this Congress. The Farm Bureau is not contending for class legislation, as has been said of it, but for the benefit of a large percentage of the citizens of the United States."

"Let the farmers get together and see that they have adequate protection in the new tariff law. Let them get men adequately trained and argue the question out before the tariff committee. The Farm Bureau has such men in Washington working all of the time." Closing, Mr. Bradfute said, "when we get to the point we can speak as one voice, we will get most anything for which we ask."

Mr. Lincoln reached co-operation and unity of purpose in his address, devoted chiefly to the work of the State organization, what it is accomplishing and what it hopes to accomplish with the aid of a combined farmer organization. "There is no greater problem today than putting the farmer in his rightful place in the life of the nation and making the farm business attractive enough to keep the young people on the farms," he said.

That there are now 97,000 Farm Bureau members in the state, with a constantly growing membership that justified the prediction of an enrollment of over 100,000 in Ohio by next year, was the statement of the secretary, Guernsey county, which is now in the midst of its membership campaign, is the last county in the state to come through in the campaign, which started February 5, 1920 and has brought thousands of new members into the organization. Mr. Lincoln preached co-operation, the shipping associations recently formed, in elaborating on the progress being made by the bureau. He said that the shipping associations have saved the men who shipped, through that medium much more money than has been spent by the bureau in all the work it has as yet undertaken. He referred also to the disadvantages of the present fluctuating market, and the desirability of a more orderly and regular market, and also of the advantages of the wool pools.

"Co-operation can and will pay big when properly supported by its members," said Mr. Lincoln, in urging combined action as opposed to individual efforts. "The Bureau has saved you more in the past year than you paid in dues to both the Bureau and the Grange for several years past. To do this and accomplish more, we must have your faith and confidence."

Touching on this last thought, Mr. Prugh, when introduced for a brief talk, made the theme of his address, "Loyalty," urging loyalty not only to the bureau but a faith and confidence in the officers and leaders in the bureau movement. He emphasized the right of recall of any officers through the ballot which permits every member a vote on the different offices to be filled, and urged that the leaders selected, then be given hearty support and co-operation.

W. B. Bryson, former representative from this county, and President of the Greene County Farm Bureau, acted as chairman during the speaking program and introduced the speakers. In his introductory remarks, Mr. Bryson remarked that it was the first picnic ever held by the Greene County Farm Bureau. At the close of the meeting when he called for a vote on the question of continuing the affairs and making them annual fixtures, the opinion was unanimous in favor of the proposition. Mr. Bryson in the course of his remarks, also announced the Fall Festival to be held in this city next week and urged the attendance of farmers particularly on Farmers' Day, which is Wednesday, when prizes will be offered for the most attractively decorated floats with farm produce, and for the tallest, the shortest and heaviest man in the parade.

On the speaker's platform which was erected in front of the grandstand, and decorated with flags and hunting, were J. H. Larimore, assistant publicity director for the State Farm Bureau and former state editor of the Ohio State Journal and W. H. Loyd, representing the Ohio Farmer, a Cleveland publication.

In conjunction with the Farm Bureau picnic, the Greene County Threshers' Association also held their picnic at the grounds, participating in the program of the bureau affair. The events started at nine o'clock in the morning a program of field events occupying the morning and early afternoon.

Prizes were offered for the various contests, which were decided as follows: Girls' Race, Mary Smith first; Helen Shellabarger, second and Helen Finney, third; Boy's Race, W. Peele, first; James Bryson, second and Morris Kirsch, third; Open Race, C. M. Williamson, first; W. Peele, second and Herman Lewis, third; Shoe Race, Abraham Andrews, first, Charles Kyle second and John Finney, third; Watermelon Eating Contest, Hugh McDorman, first and Billie Reid, second.

The nail-driving contest for women, in which the contestants attempted to drive a nail with the fewest number of strokes from the hammer, resulted in several ties.

which necessitated the contest being extended. Mrs. Brighton, Mrs. A. G. Paullin, Mrs. Smith, Mrs. DeFord and Mrs. Finney, finished with four strokes in the preliminaries. In the second attempt, Mrs. Finney, was first with three, Mrs. DeFord second with four and Mrs. Smith, Mrs. Brighton and Mrs. Paullin and Mrs. Smith each had five strokes. Mrs. Paullin and Mrs. Smith each drove the nail with four strokes in the third trial but on the last attempt Mrs. Smith only required three strokes to six used by Mrs. Paullin, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Finney then drew for the prize.

Horse shoe pitching was probably one of the features of the day, the men keeping the pegs and shoes busy during most of the time. In the regular pitching contests, Chester Garver and Charles Conkila, were the winners, with Alonzo Peele and Henry Nogle second, and John Pistick and Mr. Gaddis, third.

Farmers were present from Pike, Brown, Clinton, Madison, Clark, Montgomery, Warren, Highland, Miami, Darke, Clermont and Fayette counties and much credit for the success of the picnic reflects on the officers and on Fred Keeler, acting County Agent.

Biggest Thing of Kind Ever Seen In That State, Says Big Wholesaler

The fact that 625,000 bottles of Tanlac have been sold in the state of New York since its introduction there less than one year ago, is a big business item that will attract unusual attention throughout the entire East for nothing like it has ever happened before. It breaks all records.

Mr. George B. Evans, manager of the Gibson-Snow Company, the well-known wholesale druggists, with branches in Albany, Buffalo, Rochester and Syracuse, recently announced that the preparation was now selling in their trade territories alone at the phenomenal rate of approximately 500,000 bottles a year.

"If the present rate continues," said Mr. Evans, "this state alone will probably require considerably over 750,000 bottles a year. This is a tremendous figure, but I am really conservative in making this statement."

Tanlac is sold in Xenia by Sayre & Hemphill, and by leading druggists everywhere.

DINNER STORIES

"Your husband is mighty good to you."
"What do you mean?"

"Why, I've heard he's bought a washing machine for you."
"Not for me; he's heard that it's a good thing to make beer in."

A rural dorky in Georgia, of little experience in traveling, presented himself to the ticket agent at the railway station and inquired the price of transportation to Macon. "Three dollars and forty cents," said the agent. "Ooo!" exclaimed the dorky, "dat shore is high! I'd rather walk." And off he started. He had not proceeded very far when the train came along, whistling as it neared the station. "Yo' needn't wistle fo' me," muttered the dorky as he trudged along. "I made yo' an offer onct an' yo' wouldn't take it. So yo' kin go on, train. I ain't a-comin' wif yo'."

For years a bitter feud had existed between the Browns and Robinsons, next-door neighbors. The trouble had originated through the depredations of Brown's cat, and had grown so fixed an affair that neither party ever dreamed of "making it up." One day, however, Brown sent his servant next door with a peace-making note for Mr. Robinson, which read:

"Mr. Brown sends his compliments to Mr. Robinson, and begs to say that his old cat died this morning."

Robinson's written reply was bitter. "Mr. Robinson is sorry to hear of Mr. Brown's trouble, but he had heard that Mrs. Brown was ill."

A certain pastor makes it a point to welcome any strangers cordially, and one evening after the completion of the service he hurried down the aisle to station himself at the door.

A Swedish girl was one of the strangers in the congregation. She is employed as a domestic in one of the fashionable homes, and the minister, noting that she was a stranger, stretched out his hand. He welcomed her to the church and expressed the hope that she would be a regular attendant. Finally he said that if she would be at home some evening during the week he would call.

"Thank you," she murmured bashfully, "but ay have a fella."

Harold Lloyd rarely fails to get his daily laugh from the sayings of Kid Blue, the big colored heavyweight who works as extra around the Rolin Film Company studio in Los Angeles. The kid was "panning" his landlord recently. It appears that the bungalow rented by the hard working "actor" was not built for wet weather. The first rain of the season rolled against the roof and then kept right on rolling through the frail shingles. The landlord came in answer to a hurry-up call and in trying to smooth the situation over assured Mistah Blue that he would soon put in a bath for him.

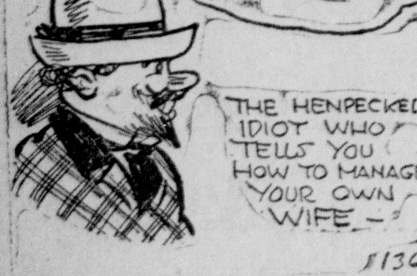

"You'll put in a bawth?" sputtered the kid as he viewed the drenched surroundings. "What Ah wants is a new roof—or a cahload of towels."

Doubtless the old woman in this story from the London Post will now be able to enlighten her husband on a troublesome subject.

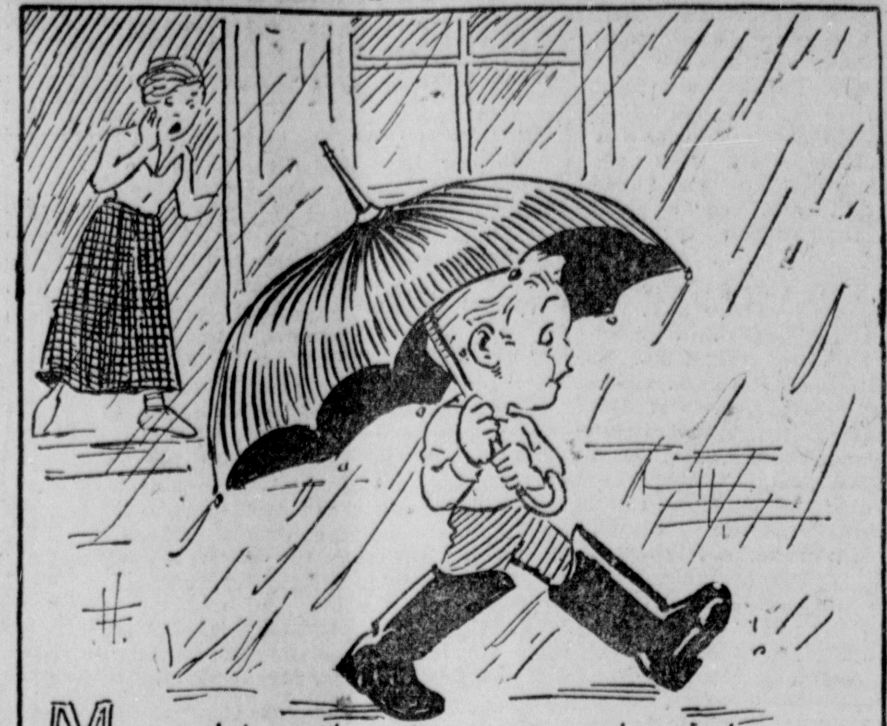

"Doctor," she inquired of a country physician, "can you tell me how it is that some folks be born dumb?"

"Why—hem!—why, certainly, ma'am," replied the doctor. "It is because they come into the world without the power of speech."

"Dear me," remarked the woman, "just see what it is to have a physical education! I'm right glad I axed you. I've axed my old man a hundred times that there same question, and all he would ever say was, 'Cause they be.'"

RUSSIA'S DESIGNS ON TURKESTAN AND INDIA NOW RELATED

Washington.—How Soviet Russia planned to conquer Turkestan and use it "as a bridge to India," and the progress they are making in the Near East, Persia and India itself is disclosed in reports reaching here of the work of Commissar Eliawa, of the Department of Eastern Propaganda in Moscow and head of the Turko-Commission to Asia Minor. Eliawa was also sent to Angora with presents from Moscow to the Turkish Communists.

Hatred of Great Britain characterizes the whole report of the Commissar. The British soldiers in Baku are spoken of as "impudent mercenaries," and predictions are made that the Bolsheviks "will dispose, not of hundreds of thousands, but of millions of their Asiatic fellow-combatants."

"John Bull knows this and already shows his teeth, powerless in the sight of the bridge we shall throw over him in India," the report declares.

"Creative Political Difficulties." "Naturally neither Moscow nor we of the Turko-Commission labor under the illusion that the Mahometans of the Turkestan were prepared to adopt Socialism," the report continues. "We believed and knew, however, that these same Mahometans, if even only an outward adoption of Bolshevism could be achieved, would play the part of a bridge over which the Soviet Government could reach the neighboring Eastern countries, and that it would be possible to create political difficulties for the Entente, and especially for England."

"Our network of agitation gradually spread and today its branches stretch to Afghanistan and from there to Northern India."

The first "fortress of Mahometan Absolutism" claimed by the Soviet missionaries was Khiva. The Khan of Khiva fled and a local Communist regime was established, which concluded a treaty with the Russian Commissars.

"Attention was then directed toward Afghanistan. All the Ameer's attempts to combat the movement failed and the renewal of friendly relations with the English on the basis of a united front against Bolshevism only served to alienate the sympathies of his entourage at Court. This delighted the agitators who in the autumn were able to report the erection of a Bolshevik radio station at Kabul."

"In Samarkand," the report continues, "we have the best school for the training of propagandists and of members of the organization." In nine months this school turned out 3,500 trained instructors including 950 Hindus, 460 Tajiks, 950 Turkomans and Kara Kirghis, 1,300 Sarts and Afghans, 270 Bokharans and Khivans and 250 Mongols, Tibetans, Kurds and so forth. Chief attention was paid to the representatives of the Indian races, and only fully converted Socialists were sent to India.

The propaganda school is not confined to Turkestan, but has branches throughout Southern Asia as far as China. The most valuable classes are those recently established in Benares and Delhi, which are working splendidly under eyes of the English, the report states. Founded in July of last year, the organization within three months contained 91,000 active members, paying subscriptions, 120,000 pounds sterling had been collected and the regular monthly subscriptions amounted to 15,000 pounds.

Eliawa stated that propaganda work in the Caucasus was impeded by incessant revolts and because of the Cossacks and peasants of the Northern Caucasus, under the influence of the "Whites and Social Traitors," resisted all Soviet reforms. The Red Army therefore decided to cut the Gordian knot by concentrating on Azerbaijan. The Turko-Tartar population was quickly expelled by Turkish agents and Russian instructors, who compliment themselves upon having chosen the right moment to assault the prestige of the Entente among the inhabitants. The Bolshevik landing at Enzeli, the subsequent advance into Persian territory and the operations at Derbent and Petrovsk are quoted as victories which led up to the formation of a Soviet in Baku and a Red base in the Caucasus.

RECIPES FOR CAMPERS

In publishing the following recipes for campers, I have omitted to mention pancakes in the belief that all campers know how to make them. The question that puzzles the amateur camp cook is, "What shall I serve beside pancakes?" The coarser grains and cereals answer this question, helped out with canned goods and whatever game or fresh produce can be obtained near the camping spot. So I have dealt with these coarser grains, chiefly:

Cereal Scrapple: Any cooked cereal at all, will make this. Simply cook it as if to eat for breakfast, but instead let it cool in a shallow pan mixed with a generous amount of chopped, crisply-fried bacon and seasoned to taste with salt. When cool and solid, cut into slices and fry. Serve hot. (Fine with fish.)

Buttercakes: Stir into 1 cup of sweet milk 2 well-beaten eggs, 1/2 teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 cup of evaporated cream will serve (the purpose), a pinch of salt, 1 tablespoon melted butter and enough flour to make a stiff batter. Drop this in rounds on a buttered griddle which is not too hot, and turn so as to brown both sides. Put a little butter on the top of each before serving. (There is a decided knack about making these, but practice will bring results.)

Rice Fritters: Boil rice till tender then drain and to every 3 cups of it allow 1 egg; mix well, season with salt and pepper, and fry in a hot frying pan. Serve with sirup.

Steamed Cornbread: Mix and sift 2 cups of cornmeal and 1 cup of bread flour, then mix into this 2 cups of sour milk in which 2 teaspoons of soda have been dissolved, 1/2 cup molasses and 2 teaspoons salt. Turn this into a pail with a tight fitting cover, tying on the cover with string, then place this small pail in a larger one containing boiling water. Let the water boil up around the small pail for 2 1/2 hours, and the bread is done.

Baked Corn Dish: Turn a can of corn into a crock and stir into it 1 egg and seasonings to suit taste. Cover this vessel and bury it in the hot embers of a campfire, leaving it there for an hour or more. Then eat (good even when cold). The egg in this recipe may be omitted if more convenient.

Camp Johnny Cake: Allow 1-2 tea spoon salt to 1 cup of cornmeal. Mix this with enough hot water to make a soft batter (that is soft enough to stir easily, yet not to run, for the cakes must keep their shape). A little milk improves the cakes, also an egg—but these are not necessary. Put 1 tea spoonful of this batter on a medium hot griddle for each cake and pat down to 1-2 inch in thickness. Let cook slowly enough to do them through, and turn to brown on both sides.

Another Good Baked Dish: (contributed by a reader.) Put 1 quart of sweet milk into a crock as described above for Baked Corn, and stir into it 1-2 cup of sugar and 2 cups of uncooked grape-nuts. An egg makes it richer, but is not necessary. Bury in embers as above described and serve cold. (It will be solid when the grape-nuts swell.)

Columbus, August 22.—"The growth of Socialism is due to the apathy of the American people in combating its propaganda and the lack of real patriotism in Americans themselves," said C. E. ### MARGARET CONFIDES IN HANNAH. CHAPTER 17

Margaret had not the heart to wear the gray dress with the touch of rose color again. It hung in the closet—for a time anyway. Joan had shown so plainly the effect of her weeping, the tearing sobs—holloved-eyed, pale and listless she was as unlike the usual Joan, who welcomed the new day and her mother with joyful cries, as could be imagined.

"I never dreamed she would take anything so to heart," Margaret said to herself, feeling very guilty as she looked at the small pale face framed in its golden glory.

She had intended to do her hair as she had the preceding day, but after a look at Joan, she drew it back into the same uncompromising plainness as had been her custom. Joan said nothing, but a little smile wreathed her lips, and a glance of satisfaction gleamed from her eyes—that she would not too easily forgive Margaret's offense was evident. She was unusually quiet at breakfast, and afterward, when getting ready for school, she went about in a subdued way. But when she left she kissed her mother and said:

"Good-bye, Mumsie!" That "Mumsie" meant that she had taken her mother back into her Northampton, Mass., Aug. 22.—Usage may make customs, but it doesn't provide an alibi for a young man attempting to drive an automobile with one hand, while his other arm gently encircles the yielding waist of a maiden.

Such at least is the opinion of Judge John B. O'Donnell, who slapped a fine of $15 on Joseph Selwitz of Springfield, in District Court, for violating a minor traffic regulation.

love again—that she felt "acquainted."

Margaret had always made all Joan's clothes. She sewed daintily and loved the task. Joan's dresses, she designed as well as made, so there was always an individuality about them.

After Joan left for school Margaret sat down with a yellow linen slip she was making for Joan, while her trained fingers flew, her thoughts flew still faster.

What should she do? If she gave in to Joan now, all her desire for freedom, for independence would be lost almost before she had realized its birth.

"I can't make her unhappy—I can't," she muttered. Then: "But why should she be unhappy because I have realized I am not really old; that life still holds something beside motherhood for me? Not that anything could ever mean what she does, the dear, but that I somehow seem to feel different."

Suddenly she sat erect. A thought shot through her mind:

Some day Joan will go away from you—will marry!

Margaret began to figure. If Joan married say at 20, she, Margaret, would be 40. Of course it was natural to suppose that Joan's husband—whichever he might be—would be willing to either go on living with her, or that she should live with them. But suppose he shouldn't be willing. Or suppose she would not care to make either arrangement what then?

"Forty isn't old," she muttered. Then throwing aside the slip upon which she had been so industriously working, she went up to her room. "No. 40 is not old!" she said then added: "unless one allows it to be."

She seated herself before her dressing table mirror. Slowly she examined herself, each feature, looking for sign of wrinkles, and found none. Save for a little crinkling at the corner of her eyes, her face was as smooth as Joan's own. And that crinkling might well have been caused by laughter instead of age.

Some day she would take a trip into Boston and replenish her small stock of cosmetics. She had a good complexion, but a bit of rouge, a tiny line to extend her eyebrows, some good powder, would make a difference.

Margaret Hayden longed to talk with someone, and no one but old Hannah being available, she decided to go to her.

"You see, Hannah, Joan isn't accustomed to seeing me wear anything but sober clothes, plainly made. I never have cared. But somehow I seem to have commenced to care lately," she blushed vividly at her naive confession, "and Joan resents it. That was why she cried so the other night. She said she had lost her Mumsie."

"You sure looked fine. And Mrs. Hayden, ma'am, please don't stop because of her—Joan. You ain't nothin' but a young thing yoself. Why your ma warn't married 'till she was older than what you are this minute. Just go on making yo'-self look fine like the other night Miss Joan she going to git used to it. Don't you fear."

"I want to—Hannah, but—" "Don't have no 'but' about it, ma'am. You sure is old enough to know your own mind, same as you lets Joan know hern. You lets her do what she wants to, because you do what she think it is right. Why ain't it right for you too? That's what I want to know."

"Thank you, Hannah." Hannah returned to her work mumbled to herself, and wondering what her mistress had thanked her for.
